

OVM Blog Rules:

February 9, 2009

We reserve the right to remove any comment or user from our blog — although we have no duty to do so. When comments are deleted, it will be because they violate one or more of our rules. Repeated violation of these rules may result in the suspension of your commenting privileges.

Specific Rules:

- We live by words online, so we don't allow obscene, racist or sexually explicit language. Personal attacks are not permitted. We reserve the right to remove comments that are abusive, hateful, or defame or insult anyone. We also reserve the right to remove comments that are off-topic or not in English.
- It is illegal to harass or threaten anyone. We take threats, harassment and stalking very seriously. Comments that might be construed as such may be deleted and made available to the proper law enforcement officials.
- No solicitations or advertisements are allowed. This includes advertisements for your business, your own online endeavors or the latest get-rich-quick scheme.
- You may link to other informational Web sites when relevant to the discussion, but links to commercial sites are generally not allowed.
- You may not suggest or encourage illegal activity. Ohiovalleymanor.com will assist law enforcement officials in any investigation of such activities.
- You must respect the privacy of individuals. This means no posting of phone numbers, addresses, social security numbers or any other confidential information. We discourage users from posting such information even about themselves, as we cannot control how that information may be used beyond our blog.
- Good manners online means that you don't post the same comment more than once. The online word for posting many times on one topic is "spamming." We don't allow it.
- You participate at your own risk on the blog, on message boards, in chat rooms and in e-mail. You use the information provided on our blog at your own risk. Ohiovalleymanor.com takes no responsibility for the content or opinions posted here.

Please keep these rules in mind as you use our blog. Thanks for participating.